Daniel (Danny) Mills has had a strong passion for music since an early age and started learning the trumpet while being a chorister at Chichester cathedral. After 5 years of study as a music scholar at Uppingham School, Rutland, he worked as a residential music assistant at the famous St. Paul's Cathedral, London, and a beautiful rural prep school in Hampshire, Highfield School.

He completed a degree in classical music at Leeds College of Music where was taught by David Hooper and graduated with first class honours while receiving the Joseph Stones classical music award. In the summer of this year, Daniel completed his masters in Music with distinction at the Royal Northern College of Music, where he studied under Murray Greig and Rhys Owens.

The trumpet has taken Daniel all across the world including America, South Africa and many corners of Europe. He plays regularly with many fine orchestras in the north of England and has recently enjoyed playing with the Hallé. Outside of music, Daniel is an avid Southampton supporter and enjoys a round of golf in the sun!
